Council Appropriates $209,967 To Run City

FUND MEASURE FOR 1947 GETS UNANIMOUS OK

Appropriation Ordinance Is Passed As Emergency At Last 1946 Meeting

Costs of operating the city government in 1947 will total $209,967.66 according to the annual appropriation ordinance passed Tuesday night by Circleville city council.

The measure was passed as an emergency measure under suspension of the rules and the vote was unanimous.

Various items contained in the 1947 schedule of operating costs were discussed at length by the councilmen during a "closed" session with council officials in recess. When the "open" meeting was resumed Council Clerk Fred Nicholas was instructed to read the ordinance by "title only."

Fund Allotments Listed

Following is a copy of the 1947 appropriations as contained in the ordinance:

Council: Members $864, incidentals $15, total $879.

Clerk of Council: Salary $324, stationery $15, incidentals $15, total $354.

Mayor: Salary $900, stationery $100, incidentals $75, total $1,075.

Auditor: Salary $1,230, stationery $50, incidentals $150, total $1,430.

Treasurer: Salary $400, bond $200, stationery $10, incidentals $10, total $630.

Solicitor: Salary $900, clerk hire $208, stationery $20, incidentals $75, law library $15, total $1,218.

Civil Service Commission: Salary of members $150, stationery $15, incidentals $15, legal advertising $20, total $200.

Police Get $17,205

General Safety Administration: Salary of director $930, retirement $5, stationery $10, incidentals $15, total $960.

Police Department: Salary of regular police $13,560, stationery $25, bicycle tags $75, special police $1,250, fuel, light and supplies $1,500, maintenance of police equipment $500, sustenance of prisoners $250, retirement $45, total $17,205.

Fire Department: Salary of regular firemen and chief $13,620, lights $135, incidentals $200, special $135, total $14,090.

Policemen, Firemen Ask Pay Boosts

Pay increases for Circleville's 14 policemen and firemen aggregating $3,360 a year were asked when the city council met in its final 1946 session Tuesday night.

The council took no action on the requests of the policemen and firemen for salary increases of $20 a month each.

The pay boost pleas were discussed during a 70-minute recess but when the official meeting was resumed the question of the pay raises did not come up for discussion.

Earlier in the council session Clerk Fred R. Nicholas read written requests signed by policemen, by Police Chief William F. McCrady, and by firemen. There were three such communications, each asking a $20 a month salary boost.

The letter from the policemen emphasized the present high cost of living and cited that they now are paid $160 a month. The requested increase would give them $180 a month.

The individual letter from Chief McCrady cited that he is subject to call for duty 24 hours a day. He now receives $170 a month and the $20 increase would boost his pay to $190 a month.

The police petition bore the names of Patrolmen George Green, Elmer Merriman, Alva Shasteen, John W. McGinnis, Turney Ross and Roderick List.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise now is paid $170 a month and the requested $20 boost would give him $190 a month. The letter from the firemen carried the signatures of Chief Wise, and Firemen Robert Wolf, Fred A. Howell, Noble E. Barr, Daniel D. Eitel, Bernard D. Wolfe and Ray Anderson.

PRESBYTERIAN PASTOR NAMED

The Rev. Donald E. Mitchell, Cincinnati, To Come Here About February 1

The Rev. Donald E. Mitchell will be the new pastor of the Circleville Presbyterian church.

It was announced Wednesday that the Rev. Mr. Mitchell has resigned as pastor of the Delhi Presbyterian church, Cincinnati, to accept a call to the Presbyterian church here to fill the vacancy caused when the Rev. Carl L. Kennedy died a few months ago.

The Rev. Mr. Mitchell and his family expect to move to the Presbyterian manse here January 27 and assume his new duties February 1. The Rev. Mr. Mitchell and Mrs. Mitchell are the parents of two daughters. One is enrolled in Maryville college in Tennessee and the other is at home.

A graduate of McCormick seminary, the Rev. Mr. Mitchell formerly served pastorates in Michigan and Covington, Ky. He has been pastor of the Cincinnati church for six years.

COUNCIL FROWNS ON WORKSHOP OF CITY EMPLOYEE

Members of the city council Tuesday night frowned on the plea of Hildeburn Martin, a municipal waterworks employee for permission to build a workshop on waterworks ground.

Council Clerk Fred Nicholas read an ordinance authorizing the board of municipal utilities to grant such permission to Martin. City Solicitor George Gerhardt explained to council members that the board of municipal utilities was willing to give a lease on the ground to Martin for the workshop and that the board desired the council to pass the ordinance authorizing such action.

Councilman Ray Anderson opposed the idea. He declared that if such permission was granted to Martin then firemen, policemen and other city employees would also be entitled to engage in similar activities.

Council failed to take action on the ordinance.

Testifies He Gave Bilbo Lake, "Dream House"

A MISSISSIPPI WAR CONTRACTOR, Mike T. Morrissey, above, is shown as he testified before a war investigating committee in Washington that he gave Senator Theodore Bilbo (D) of Mississippi an automobile and an artificial lake costing $9,172 with an island for a "dream house." Morrissey, who sought Bilbo's aid in getting war contracts, said that the cost of the lake was originally charged to the government but later this was "corrected." The photos of the "dream house" and the lake, also shown, were exhibited as evidence.

Ohio Farmers Are Ready To Produce More Food

BY JOHN BARRINGTON
International News Service Staff Correspondent

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 18—Ohio farmers are all set to produce more food than ever before—providing they are permitted to do so untrammelled by governmental restrictions and are able to make what they consider a "fair" profit.

That, briefly, is the consensus among farm leaders from all sections of the state currently attending the 74th annual Ohio State Grange convention in Columbus.

Agriculturists interviewed by International News Service were unanimous today in the feeling that removal of price ceilings and marketing restrictions presage a bumper production year.

To a man, the farm representatives—traditionally proud of their independence—said they gladly "went along" with controls during the war but thought they should have been removed "much sooner" than they were.

Subsidies Not Wanted
Nor do subsidy programs find a warm reception.

"The farmer doesn't want a dole," said Harry A. Heintz, who owns an 80-acre farm in Shelby county and farms an adjoining parcel of equal size. He added: "Just give him a fair profit and he'll produce."

STUDENT PLEADS INSANITY IN OUI MURDER CASE

ATHENS, O., Dec. 18—Jewell Peters, 24-year-old student-veteran accused of slaying his wife, pleaded innocent to second-degree murder today by reason of insanity.

Arraigned before Athens County Common Pleas Judge O. F. Rowland, Peters conferred for ten minutes with defense counsel before entering the plea.

Then his attorneys, Roger Jones and R. G. Williams, announced his plea and told the court the Ohio University honor student "may now be insane."

Peters was indicted Monday by the county grand jury after he allegedly admitted last week to Prosecutor Gordon Gray that he had smothered his wife, Leah Mae, with bedclothing in their trailer home Dec. 2. Peters himself was violently ill when his wife's body was discovered and later said he may have taken poison.

JUDGE WILLIAMS DIES

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 18—Judge Roy H. Williams, 72, member of the Ohio supreme court and a judge of county, appellate and the supreme courts for 31 years, collapsed of a heart attack this afternoon and died ten minutes later in Grant hospital, Columbus.

Grange deputy master, emphasized the uncertainty of farming.

"The farmer is the world's biggest gambler," he summed up. "Right now, for instance, we expect a fine wheat crop because of the mild fall. A severe cold spell this winter or a cold spring would completely change that picture, however."

Meat To Stay Up

Most farmers expect current high meat prices to prevail for some time, although they don't agree on when a break may be expected.

Estimates on the time it would require for prices to show a noticeable drop varied from "this spring" to "a year from now."

OHIO MINERS TO GET BACK FINES TAKEN FROM PAY

BELLAIRE, O., Dec. 18—Ohio coal miners will be reimbursed for strike fines deducted from their pay as a result of the nation-wide coal strike which ended Dec. 7.

Adolph Pacifico, acting president of the AFL's United Mine Workers district six, made the announcement today. He said the Ohio coal association had agreed to the reimbursement.

Miners were paid Dec. 10 and $1-a-day strike fines were deducted for the period from Nov. 21 to Nov. 30. The fines averaged five to six dollars.

Pacifico said no deduction would be made for the walkout period from Dec. 2 to Dec. 7, inclusive, when the miners are paid next week. The reimbursement will be included in that pay period.

Christmas Fund Joke Backfires On Municipal Court Judge At Toledo

TOLEDO, O., Dec. 18—A Toledo judge's unique idea to raise $3,000 for Christmas charities and a few laughs backfired today with re-sounding jolts felt in leading homes all over the city.

The idea grew out of an annual practice of the Toledo municipal court in turning over to the old newsboys fellowship fund all traffic fines during one day of the yuletide season.

Judge Stanley Grzezinski thought the fund could be increased by $3,000 with a little amusement included.

He decided to summon into court 300 known philanthropists on "trumped up" charges.

The judge dictated his letter to a stenographer, who mimeographed ed it and mailed copies to the 300 men listed by the jurist.

The letter ordered the men to appear in court today to pay for what Judge Grzezinski jokingly called, "the social consequence of your negligence."

When the men appeared in court, the judge intended to read a funny charge and fine each "defendant" $10 for the newsboys fund.

However, the trouble started when some of his letters were opened by the addressee's wives—who knew nothing of the plan.

Some did not wait to find out anything about it.

About a dozen women called the judge immediately for an explanation of the so-called "negli-

Stassen Gets Jump On GOP With Announcement He Will Seek Presidency

BY ARTHUR F. HERMANN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—The 1948 Republican presidential sweepstakes are off ahead of schedule today with Minnesota's Harold E. Stassen making a bold move to force the hand of many favorite sons.

Washington political observers believe that Stassen's early announcement that he is a presidential candidate will bring pressure on the backers of favorite sons to get off the fence.

The former Minnesota governor and war veteran is a candidate for the 1948 nomination on a platform of "true liberalism." His campaign will be aimed at garnering all the liberals in the party, especially the followers of the late Wendell Willkie.

Stassen's maneuver is bound to have an earlier than expected effect on the possible candidates from Ohio and Massachusetts.

Ohioans Face Problem

Ohio must decide whether to back Sen. Robert Taft or Sen. Elect John W. Bricker.

The Massachusetts possibilities are Sen. Leverett Saltonstall, Sen. Elect Henry Cabot Lodge and house speaker-to-be Joseph W. Martin.

Sen. Arthur Vandenberg of Michigan, formally announced yesterday that he is not a candidate for the Republican presidential nomination. "I anticipate no campaign in my behalf," he said.

New York's Gov. Thomas E. Dewey, is the ruling favorite for the 1948 nomination. While his supporters have made no announcement of any kind, delegates in his behalf are being lined up from coast to coast.

NEW ALTITUDE RECORD CLAIMED

Speed Of More Than 3,600 Miles Per Hour Made In Rocket Test

WHITE SANDS PROVING GROUND, N. M., Dec. 18—Firing of man-made meteors from the warhead of a V-2 rocket remained an open question today, but Army officials claimed a new altitude record of 111 miles and a maximum speed mark of more than 3,600 miles per hour for the rocket's first night flight.

Scientists, who prepared the six artificial meteors in an attempt to explore celestial space, announced that evidence was conclusive that a mechanical defect prevented ejection, and the meteorites were not visible.

Commanding Officer Lt. Col. Harold Turner, who reported last night's firing of the 17th German projectile broke an altitude and speed record posted July 30, said the V-2 landed 27 miles northeast of the launching point.

Colonel Turner refused to go into detail on the meteorites, saying that the rocket's scientific instruments worked excellently.

Dr. J. A. Vanallen of the applied physics laboratory, John Hopkins university, said he was pleased with the flight but had no immediate answer on why the meteorites were not seen.

Recovery and study of the specially-instrumented warhead in several days is expected to provide the answer. Dr. Vanallen, in charge of the explosive device, thought outlying observatories might have had better visibility than that at the launching site.

SCHOOL BUS HIT BY TRAIN; 10 CHILDREN DIE

SILVERSTREET, S. C., Dec. 18—A Southern Railway passenger train, racing to make up lost time in its schedule, crashed into a school bus near Silverstreet today, killing at least ten children and the driver of the vehicle.

Twelve others were reported injured, some critically. They were removed to a hospital at Newberry.

The wreckage and the bodies of victims were scattered over a 200-yard area at the ironically appropriately named Dead Fall junction crossing, on the highway from Newberry to Souda.

Ex-Secretary Claims That Contractors Paid Off Solon's Debts

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—A former secretary to Sen. Bilbo (D) Miss., testified today that Bilbo's ex-manager warned him in 1946 that if he testified against the senator he would be killed.

Edward P. Terry, the witness who claims threats had been made against him and his family, told the senate war investigating committee the warning was passed on to him by A. B. Friend, Mississippi contractor and Bilbo's campaign manager in 1940 and 1946.

Friend, he said, told him that "two men would do the job."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—A former secretary to Sen. Bilbo (D) Miss., testified today that war contractors underwrote a Bilbo 1940 campaign deficit of $4,350.

Edward P. Terry, a reluctant witness who first tried to escape testifying, also told the senate war investigating committee that Bilbo interceded with the justice department in an effort to aid A. L. Shushan, ex-Huey Long lieutenant, escape prosecution.

Terry said he and Bilbo went to see the then assistant attorney general Matthew F. McGuire, now a district judge, about one of the government's cases against Shushan.

McGuire, he said, called in O. John Rogge, who was handling the case against Shushan in New Orleans.

"Rogge told Sen. Bilbo there was nothing that could be done with reference to the Shushan case he was handling in New Orleans," the witness related.

Shushan Efforts Fail

Shushan, a former Mississippi merchant, paid the government $120,000 on an income tax case and later was sentenced on a federal mail fraud charge. Terry said he didn't know which case was involved in the visit he and Bilbo had with Rogge in early 1939.

Terry testified that contractors who built the $1,731,000 Key field in Mississippi underwrote the 1940 Bilbo deficit.

The ex-secretary, who was overruled on a plea to be excused from talking, said Bilbo and A. B. Friend told him he would be "repaid" by the contractors for money he had advanced in 1940.

Terry said Bilbo told him that $3,000 the senator borrowed from Shushan "would not have to be paid back if he was able to assist (Continued on Page Two)

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

There is testimony that Sen. Bilbo had a lake built on his place . . . evidently the one he has told so many people to go jump into.

But most astonishing is the attempt to "fix" sports in New York . . . The outlook is that several gamblers will receive ball bonds for Christmas gifts.

Not that sports-fix efforts are new . . . probably Ben Hur was propositioned to throw a wheel on his chariot.

In Kentucky, 600 cases of whiskey were destroyed in a distillery fire . . . The W. C. T. U. failed to answer the alarm but I hear firemen from all surrounding towns were ready and willing.

In France the people have decided to stick the minority party with the presidency . . . as here.

And in Washington, Sen. Tom Connally has finally reached a conclusion on why the Democrats lost in November. Says Tom . . . "We was OPA-ed."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—The 1948 Republican presidential sweepstakes are off ahead of schedule today with Minnesota's Harold E. Stassen making a bold move to force the hand of many favorite sons.

Washington political observers believe that Stassen's early announcement that he is a presidential candidate will bring pressure on the backers of favorite sons to get off the fence.

COAL OPERATORS MEET THURSDAY

Owners To Discuss Taking Back Mines And Talking Contract With Lewis

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Bituminous operators will meet in Washington tomorrow to canvass the soft coal wage situation and discuss the controversial issue of resuming negotiations with John L. Lewis.

The conference will represent the first gathering of the operators since mid-November when they were called in by Interior Secretary J. A. Krug and informed of Lewis' 1947 contract demands.

At that time the mine owners agreed to the government's proposal for a resumption of industry-union talks, but Lewis balked. The UMW chief terminated the union's contract with the government and precipitated a 17-day mine shutdown.

Exra Van Horn, of Cleveland, chairman of the national bituminous negotiating conference, denied that he had called tomorrow's meeting, but it was learned that the regular members of the operators' negotiating committee will be present.

Lewis' 1947 demands, as unveiled to Krug last month, called for a 40-hour work week at the same earnings of a 54-hour schedule plus an increase from five to ten cents a ton in the coal "royalty" for the miners' welfare fund.

Subsequently, the UMW chief was understood to have modified his demands to ask a 48-hour week at 54 hours' pay. This would represent a wage increase of around 20 cents an hour.

BRICKER SAYS BUREAUCRATS TO LEAVE CAPITAL

MIDDLETOWN, O., Dec. 18 After January 3, thousands of bureaucrats will be leaving Washington, U. S. Senator-Elect John W. Bricker promised today.

The 1944 GOP vice-presidential nominee commented only briefly on the announcement that Harold Stassen had formally entered the race for the 1948 presidential nomination.

"It is a wide open race," said Bricker, "anyone can come in."

Terry said he and Bilbo went to see the then assistant attorney general Matthew F. McGuire, now a district judge, about one of the government's cases against Shushan.

McGuire, he said, called in O. John Rogge, who was handling the case against Shushan in New Orleans.

"Rogge told Sen. Bilbo there was nothing that could be done with reference to the Shushan case he was handling in New Orleans," the witness related.

Shushan Efforts Fail

Shushan, a former Mississippi merchant, paid the government $120,000 on an income tax case and later was sentenced on a federal mail fraud charge. Terry said he didn't know which case was involved in the visit he and Bilbo had with Rogge in early 1939.

Terry testified that contractors who built the $1,731,000 Key field in Mississippi underwrote the 1940 Bilbo deficit.

The ex-secretary, who was overruled on a plea to be excused from talking, said Bilbo and A. B. Friend told him he would be "re-paid" by the contractors for money he had advanced in 1940.

Terry said Bilbo told him that $3,000 the senator borrowed from Shushan "would not have to be paid back if he was able to assist (Continued on Page Two)

SCHOOL BUS HIT BY TRAIN; 10 CHILDREN DIE

SILVERSTREET, S. C., Dec. 18—A Southern Railway passenger train, racing to make up lost time in its schedule, crashed into a school bus near Silverstreet today, killing at least ten children and the driver of the vehicle.

Twelve others were reported injured, some critically. They were removed to a hospital at Newberry.

The wreckage and the bodies of victims were scattered over a 200-yard area at the ironically appropriately named Dead Fall junction crossing, on the highway from Newberry to Soluda.

Ex-Secretary Claims That Contractors Paid Off Solon's Debts

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—A former secretary to Sen. Bilbo (D) Miss., testified today that Bilbo's ex-manager warned him in 1946 that if he testified against the senator he would be killed.

Edward P. Terry, the witness who claims threats had been made against him and his family, told the senate war investigating committee the warning was passed on to him by A. B. Friend, Mississippi contractor and Bilbo's campaign manager in 1940 and 1946.

Friend, he said, told him that "two men would do the job."

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—A former secretary to Sen. Bilbo (D) Miss., testified today that war contractors underwrote a $3,000 1940 campaign deficit of $4,350.

Edward P. Terry, a reluctant witness who first tried to escape testifying, also told the senate war investigating committee that Bilbo interfered with the justice department in an effort to aid A. L. Shushan, ex-Huey Long lieutenant, escape prosecution.

Terry said he and Bilbo went to see the then assistant attorney general Matthew F. McGuire, now a district judge, about one of the government's cases against Shushan.

McGuire, he said, called in O. John Rogge, who was handling the case against Shushan in New Orleans.

"Rogge told Sen. Bilbo there was nothing that could be done with reference to the Shushan case he was handling in New Orleans," the witness related.

ONE MAN'S OPINION

By Walter Kiernan

There is testimony that Sen. Bilbo had a lake built on his place . . . evidently the one he has told so many people to go jump into.

But most astonishing is the attempt to "fix" sports in New York . . . The outlook is that several gamblers will receive bail bonds for Christmas gifts.

Not that sports-fix efforts are new . . . probably Ben Hur was propositioned to throw a wheel on his chariot.

In Kentucky, 600 cases of whiskey were destroyed in a distillery fire . . . The W. C. T. U. failed to answer the alarm but I hear firemen from all surrounding towns were ready and willing.

In France the people have decided to stick the minority party with the presidency . . . as here.

And in Washington, Sen. Tom Connally has finally reached a conclusion on why the Democrats lost in November. Says Tom . . . "We was OWA-ed."

Shushan in his difficulties with the federal government.

Shushan testified two days ago that the $3,000 loaned to Bilbo through Grant Stewart, New Hebron, Miss., was repaid on July 15, 1940.

Threatened Exposure
Terry was quoted by Forrest Jackson, Bilbo's attorney, as telling him that Shushan was threatening to expose the Bilbo loan to "embarrass" Bilbo in the 1940 democratic campaign.

Terry testified that he finally received the repayment on the Bilbo campaign deficit, some in cash, the balance in two checks of $1,100 and $700 written by Forrest Jackson.

Asked by Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., why Friend and Jackson paid the amount, Terry said: "It was understood that if Mr. Friend got the key field contract I would be reimbursed."

Testimony showed that on one Jackson check, for $1,100, Terry had typed a notation that "this amount was extended by Edward P. Terry in the 1940 campaign; balance due, $700." A later check covered the $700.

Recalls Conversation
Terry related conversations with F. T. Newton and Wall Doney, unsuccessful candidate for senate nomination in 1942, about the $25,000 contribution that Newton said he supposed had gone to Doney's campaign.

Terry said he told Newton that "I think you have been held up."

He quoted Newton's rejoinder as being "Oh, hell, I can charge it to my income tax."

Terry quoted Doney as having said he "never received a dime" of the $25,000.

He made that assertion in recounting a conversation in which Newton told Doney of the contribution. He quoted Doney as telling Newton:

"I can't believe it. I didn't get a dime of it."

Terry testified that the checks were turned over to Bilbo earlier. Immediately thereafter he had a dispute with Bilbo and "quit" until friends persuaded him to return. During that time, he said, the checks were disposed of, and he said he had no knowledge of where the money went.

Bilbo Committed
Terry testified that Bilbo "committed" himself to support a Mississippi firm for the $13,760,000 Keeler field war contract.

Terry told the committee Bilbo announced himself as going "all out" for the firm of Newton, Glenn, Knost and Jones.

Testimony revealed that F. T. Newton, one of the contractors on the Keeler field project, later gave Bilbo $25,000 in four checks which Bilbo claimed he turned over to a campaign fund for Doney.

Terry testified he "couldn't count" the number of times he went to see Gen. Thomas M. Robins, then assistant chief engineer in the war department, to "recommend" the Newton firm.

Says Contract Switched

Terry told the committee that an Army engineer advised him that Newton, Frank S. Glenn and B. L. Knost had not been recommended for the work by the mobile engineers office. That same day, the contractors brought in the J. A. Jones Construction company, as an associate acceptable to the Army.

Terry said Bilbo took Jones to see Gen. Robins and "that night" Bilbo announced that the combination of contractors had "received the contract."

Terry said that after Bilbo conferred with Newton and Glenn on their efforts to obtain the work, Bilbo "announced to him that he was all out for Newton, Glenn, and Knost for obtaining the contract to build Keeler field." He added:

"He said that if anyone contacted me I was to tell them he was committed to this firm."

Aided Another Firm
Terry said Bilbo also "instructed me to render every possible as-

Stassen's announcement, in addition to forcing a solidification of backers in Massachusetts and Ohio will be a spur to other possibilities, now obscured somewhat by the shadow of Dewey's eminence.

In 1944 Sen. Taft supported the then Gov. Bricker of Ohio for the nomination. The Dewey steamroller crushed the Ohioan but he ran with Dewey as the vice presidential candidate.

Bricker supported Taft in the 1940 contest when Wendell Wilkie swept all opposition in an upset victory.

What will the Bricker forces do in 1948? Observers predict that Stassen's move will bring action in this sector sooner than expected.

United Move Needed
Massachusetts cannot go to the convention with three favorite sons, so the backers of Saltonstall, Martin and Lodge must unite behind one or the other.

Saltonstall had a great record as governor; Martin will be the next speaker of the house; and Lodge, who resigned his senate seat to enter the Army, is expected to appeal to the soldier vote.

Two hours after Vandenberg announced that he would not be a candidate in 1948, Stassen summoned reporters to his Washington hotel and announced his intentions.

To Emphasize Liberalism
He said he wanted to be "frank and direct about it." He emphasized that he would do everything "in my power to move the Republican party along the path of true liberalism."

The former naval commander declared that he opposed labor union "monopolies and dictatorships." He urged revision of the Wagner act to give employers more equality with employees in labor relations.

Earl E. Hart, of Cleveland, former secretary to supreme court justice Harold H. Burton, was named secretary of Stassen's Washington headquarters.

PARIS DENIED BOND
NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Alvin J. Paris, who attempted to fix last Sunday's Chicago-New York National League pro football league playoff, was denied bail today in general sessions.

Paris was taken to another contracting combination which finally got the key field, Miss. contract.

One of the contractors was A. B. Friend, Bilbo's campaign manager in 1940 and 1946. Bilbo on one occasion asked Terry to make an appointment with Gen. Robins for him and Friend, the witness said.

1942—the day Bilbo received the $25,000 from Newton—the senator asked Terry to recommend someone for an Army engineering job in Pittsburgh. Terry said he told Bilbo that A. B. Friend already had made a recommendation.

The witness quoted Bilbo as replying: "Who in . . . hell is the U. S. senator here?"

Quit, Then Returned
Terry said he told Bilbo to "take the senatorship and go to hell," put on his hat and "walked out."

Terry came back to his job later, finally left for good early this year.

Terry was placed on the witness stand for direct questioning after the committee heard both Bilbo and his attorney, Forrest Jackson, waive any privilege concerning what Terry might disclose about Bilbo's war contract activities.

STATE MAY GET U. S. HOSPITAL AT LOWER PRICE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 18.—Belief that the state of Ohio may acquire the Army's Fletcher General hospital without further cost arose today.

Governor Lausche almost angrily dismissed rumors that he was in line for a federal appointment when he goes out of office. The governor returned to Columbus from Washington, where he had gone to discuss with the war assets administration the acquisition of the Cambridge hospital.

Lausche reported that an appraisal had been made of the property and was now in transit to Washington from the Cincinnati WAA office.

He said the state is entitled to certain credits for care of veterans in all state institutions, which will be considered in arranging the transfer. Although he refused to discuss the credits at length, newsmen received the impression that when the credits are considered they will wipe out the purchase price which the federal government may ask.

Persistent rumors that Lausche or ex-U. S. Sen. James W. Huffman might be in line for a federal appointment were revived when the governor called on President Truman.

Deaths and Funerals
MRS. DOLLY VAN KEURAN
Mrs. Dolly Van Keuran, 76, widow of J. A. Van Keuran, of Williamsport, died at 1 a. m. Wednesday in Doctors hospital, Columbus. She had suffered a stroke a week ago.

Mrs. Van Keuran was born Sept. 9, 1870, in Jackson township, the daughter of Jeremiah Stonerock and Mary Whiteside Stonerock. She had made her home with a daughter, Mrs. Lillie Carle, at Williamsport.

Her survivors include a son, Berlin Van Keuran, Columbus. Funeral services will be conducted at 3 p. m. Saturday at the C. E. Hill funeral home at Williamsport, with the Rev. J. H. Sudlow officiating. Burial will be in Spring Lawn cemetery, Williamsport.

things we must buy costs as much as we do?"

"If prices don't stay up, livestock won't go to market. It just costs too much to feed stock. I normally always had from 400 to 450 hogs on my farm; the past year you wouldn't find 100. The margin of profit has been too small."

Morris chimed in to say that hundreds of Allen county farmers weren't keeping any hogs.

Fears Meat Shortage
Charles Reece, whose 160-acre farm near Napoleon is devoted chiefly to hog raising, expressed fear that another meat shortage is on the way.

"When controls came off, everything was rushed to market to take advantage of high prices," he said. "Farmers sold 140-pound hogs that normally would have been kept until they reached 240. If a man raises a hundred hogs during a year, the sacrifice of 100 pounds apiece mounts up."

Reece added that many farrowing sows—due to have pigs within a month—were sold to take advantage of high prices. He pointed out:

"There again, it's going to hurt to have lost all those pigs." Most of the men agreed, however, that the hog situation was better in the long run than the cattle picture.

"You can raise a market-size hog from the ground up in six to ten months," they said. "Cattle require a couple of years."

Gerald Wilson, who claims farming in his native Harrison county is being "crowded out" by strip mining, asserted that his neighbors faced a different sort of problem.

"We can't produce grain for market any more," Wilson reported. "In fact, dairy farmers in Harrison county have to buy about two-thirds of their feed from outside the county. That makes a big hole in profits they might otherwise make."

Farmer Has 'Key'
Ross K. Lawrence, Coshocton, struck a sympathetic note when he expressed a belief that the farmer held the key with which strikes might be controlled to a large extent. He explained:

"Take the miners, for example. What those fellows don't realize is that the farmer can go out and chop down a tree or clean out a hedge row and get along very well without coal. On the other hand, were we to withhold food from the miners, it would be another story."

WIFE ASKS ALIMONY
Suit for alimony was filed by Mrs. Esther O. Smith against Ashley E. Smith, South Washington street, Tuesday, in Pickaway county common pleas court. Reciting that they were married July 1, 1946, in Circleville, Mrs. Smith alleges her husband has been grossly neglectful in that he "wilfully refuses" to provide her with necessities of life.

FORMER AIDE TO SENATOR TELLS OF ACTIVITIES

Reluctant Witness Informs Probers Bilbo Got Bids For War Builders

Shushan in his difficulties with the federal government.

Shushan testified two days ago that the $3,000 loaned to Bilbo through Grant Stewart, New Hebron, Miss., was repaid on July 15, 1940.

Threatened Exposure

Terry was quoted by Forrest Jackson, Bilbo's attorney, as telling him that Shushan was threatening to expose the Bilbo loan to "embarrass" Bilbo in the 1940 democratic campaign.

Terry testified that he finally received the repayment on the Bilbo campaign deficit, some in cash, the balance in two checks of $1,100 and $700 written by Forrest Jackson.

Asked by Sen. Ferguson (R) Mich., why Friend and Jackson paid the amount, Terry said:

"It was understood that if Mr. Friend got the key field contract I would be reimbursed."

Testimony showed that on one Jackson check, for $1,100, Terry had typed a notation that "this amount was extended by Edward P. Terry in the 1940 campaign; balance due, $700." A later check covered the $700.

Recalls Conversation

Terry related conversations with F. T. Newton and Wall Doney, unsuccessful candidate for senate nomination in 1942, about the $25,000 contribution that Newton said he supposed had gone to Doney's campaign.

Terry said he told Newton that "I think you have been held up." He quoted Newton's rejoinder as being "Oh, hell, I can charge it to my income tax."

Terry quoted Doney as having said he "never received a dime" of the $25,000.

He made that assertion in recounting a conversation in which Newton told Doney of the contribution. He quoted Doney as telling Newton:

"I can't believe it. I didn't get a dime of it."

Terry testified that the checks were turned over to Bilbo earlier. Immediately thereafter he had a dispute with Bilbo and "quit" until friends persuaded him to return. During that time, he said, the checks were disposed of, and he said he had no knowledge of where the money went.

Bilbo Committed

Terry testified that Bilbo "committed" himself to support a Mississippi firm for the $13,760,000 Keesler field war contract.

Terry told the committee Bilbo announced himself as going "all out" for the firm of Newton, Glenn, Knost and Jones.

Testimony revealed that F. T. Newton, one of the contractors on the Keesler field project, later gave Bilbo $25,000 in four checks which Bilbo claimed he turned over to a campaign fund for Doney.

Terry testified he "couldn't count" the number of times he went to see Gen. Thomas M. Robins, then assistant chief engineer in the war department, to "recommend" the Newton firm.

Says Contract Switched

Terry told the committee that an Army engineer advised him that Newton, Frank S. Glenn and B. L. Knost had not been recommended for the work by the mobile engineers office. That same day, the contractors brought in the J. A. Jones Construction company, as an associate acceptable to the Army.

Terry said Bilbo took Jones to see Gen. Robins and "that night" Bilbo announced that the combination of contractors had "received the contract."

Terry said that after Bilbo conferred with Newton and Glenn on their efforts to obtain the work, Bilbo "announced to him that he was all out for Newton, Glenn, and Knost for obtaining the contract to build Keesler field." He added:

"He said that if anyone contacted me I was to tell them he was committed to this firm."

Aided Another Firm

Terry said Bilbo also "instructed me to render every possible as-

Stassen's announcement, in addition to forcing a solidification of backers in Massachusetts and Ohio will be a spur to other possibilities, now obscured somewhat by the shadow of Dewey's eminence.

In 1944 Sen. Taft supported the then Gov. Bricker of Ohio for the nomination. The Dewey steamroller crushed the Ohioan but he ran with Dewey as the vice presidential candidate.

Bricker supported Taft in the 1940 contest when Wendell Wilkie swept all opposition in an upset victory. What will the Bricker forces do in 1948? Observers predict that Stassen's move will bring action in this sector sooner than expected.

United Move Needed

Massachusetts cannot go to the convention with these favorite sons, so the backers of Saltonstall, Martin and Lodge must unite behind one or the other.

Saltonstall had a great record as governor; Martin will be the next speaker of the house; and Lodge, who resigned his senate sistance" to another contracting combination which finally got the Key field, Miss., contract.

One of the contractors was A. B. Friend, Bilbo's campaign manager in 1940 and 1946. Bilbo on one occasion asked Terry to make an appointment with Gen. Robins for him and Friend, the witness said. 1942—the day Bilbo received the $25,000 from Newton—the senator asked Terry to recommend someone for an Army engineering job in Pittsburgh. Terry said he told Bilbo that A. B. Friend already had made a recommendation.

The witness quoted Bilbo as replying:

"Who in . . . hell is the U. S. senator here?"

Quit, Then Returned
Terry said he told Bilbo to "take the senatorship and go to hell," put on his hat and "walked out."

Terry came back to his job later, finally left for good early this year. Terry was placed on the witness stand for direct questioning after the committee heard both Bilbo and his attorney, Forrest Jackson, waive any privilege concerning what Terry might disclose about Bilbo's war contract activities.

Paul Dillon, St. Louis attorney representing Terry, told the committee Terry should not be "permitted to testify" because everything the witness knows was gained while "occupying a position of confidence."

STATE MAY GET U. S. HOSPITAL AT LOWER PRICE

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 18.—Belief that the state of Ohio may acquire the Army's Fletcher General hospital without further cost arose today.

Governor Lausche almost angrily dismissed rumors that he was in line for a federal appointment when he goes out of office. The governor returned to Columbus from Washington, where he had gone to discuss with the war assets administration the acquisition of the Cambridge hospital.

Lausche reported that an appraisal had been made of the property and was now in transit to Washington from the Cincinnati WAA office.

He said the state is entitled to certain credits for care of veterans in all state institutions, which will be considered in arranging the transfer. Although he refused to discuss the credits at length, newsmen received the impression that when the credits are considered they will wipe out the purchase price which the federal government may ask.

Persistent rumors that Lausche or ex-U. S. Sen. James W. Huffman might be in line for a federal appointment were revived when the governor called on President Truman.

LANDON SEES GOOD BUSINESS FOR NEXT YEAR

NEW YORK, Dec. 18.—Alf M. Landon, Republican nominee for president in 1936, said today that this country should "start to sell the capitalist system instead of running it down as the new dealers have for the past 15 years."

The 59-year-old former governor of Kansas, in an interview at the Hotel St. Regis, foresaw the possibility that in 1947 industry, labor and the government will enter an era of cooperation that will have beneficial results all around.

He predicted business will be good in 1947 and saw no reason for worry over a possible depression. He said the new Republican congress, coming in on January 3 next year has "a great opportunity and a great responsibility."

"I think we will see a return to real, genuine liberalism in the American tradition—not this phony totalitarianism masquerading as liberalism," he asserted.

DIVORCE SUIT FILED

Mrs. Dorothy F. Majors, Circleville, filed suit for divorce in Pickaway county common pleas court, Tuesday accusing Kenneth G. Majors, Washington township, of gross neglect of duty. Judge Emmett L. Crist granted a temporary injunction restraining Majors from molesting her and from disposing of or encumbering his real or personal property during the pendency of the suit. Mrs. Majors also asks for alimony. Declaring they were married Sept. 29, 1933 at Greenup, Ky. and that they are childless, Mrs. Majors alleges her husband has a "vicious" temper, that he "cursed and abused" her, that on several occasions he "struck" her, and that because of his actions she was "forced" to leave their farm home two miles east of Circleville on Dec. 16 and take "refuge" with Circleville friends. Mrs. Majors says in her petition her husband has Circleville bank accounts totaling $7,652, and that they jointly own War Bonds totaling $5,800.

UN AWAITS MOSCOW

LAKE SUCCESS, N. Y., Dec. 18.—A United Nations roll call on the if and how of outlawing the atomic bomb and thereafter controlling atomic energy today awaited final word from Moscow. The atomic energy commission was in recess until Friday at the insistence of Soviet member Andrei Gromyko, who wanted instructions on U. S. delegate Bernard M. Baruch's take-it-or-leave-it formula for removing the atom split as a war menace.

things we must buy costs as much as they do?"

"If prices don't stay up, live-stock won't go to market. It just costs too much to feed stock. I normally always had from 400 to 450 hogs on my farm; the past year you wouldn't find 100. The margin of profit has been too small."

Morris chimed in to say that hundreds of Allen county farms weren't keeping any hogs.

Fears Meat Shortage
Charles Reece, whose 160-acre farm near Napoleon is devoted chiefly to hog raising, expressed fear that another meat shortage is on the way.

"When controls came off, everything was rushed to market to take advantage of high prices," he said. "Farmers sold 140-pound hogs that normally would have been kept until they reached 240. If a man raises a hundred hogs during a year, the sacrifice of 100 pounds apiece mounts up."

Reece added that many farrowing sows—due to have pigs within a month—were sold to take advantage of high prices. He pointed out:

"There again, it's going to hurt to have lost all those pigs."

Most of the men agreed, however, that the hog situation was better in the long run than the cattle picture.

"You can raise a market-size hog from the ground up in six to ten months," they said. "Cattle require a couple of years."

Gerald Wilson, who claims farming in his native Harrison county is being "crowded out" by strip mining, asserted that his neighbors faced a different sort of problem.

"We can't produce grain for market any more," Wilson reported. "In fact, dairy farmers in Harrison county have to buy about two-thirds of their feed from outside the county. That makes a big hole in profits they might otherwise make."

Farmer Has 'Key'
Ross K. Lawrence, Coshocton, struck a sympathetic note when he expressed a belief that the farmer held the key with which strikes might be controlled to a large extent. He explained:

"Take the miners, for example. What those fellows don't realize is that the farmer can go out and chop down a tree or clean out a hedge row and get along very well without coal. On the other hand, were we to withhold food from the miners, it would be another story."

WIFE ASKS ALIMONY

PROJECTS FOR COMING YEAR ARE OUTLINED

4-H Clubs, Livestock, Soil Management On Program Of Extension Council

Four-H club work older rural youth, economic information and trends, soil management, livestock breed improvement, consumer information, standards in clothing construction and securing an assistant agent for Summer 4-H club work are projects to be stressed during 1947 by the Pickaway county general extension council.

Plans for the year's program were made at a meeting of members of the county group, held in the county extension office. Officers of the group are Harold Hines, Walnut township, president; Donald Courtwright, Harrison township, vice president; Sterley Croman, Washington township, secretary.

During the meeting a brief summary of extension work in the county since its beginning in 1921 was given. Purposes of extension work were discussed by members of the council. Genevieve Alley, home demonstration agent, presented a summary of the farm family living outlook. She stated the outlook indicates that farm family gross income probably will remain high during 1947 but net income will be less. She said most demands for goods will be met fairly well with the exception of automobiles and housing. Less money will be spent for foods as more equipment becomes available for purchase.

L. A. Best, county agricultural agent, presented some high spots on the agricultural outlook for 1947. He said indications are that the general business outlook is uncertain. Consumer wants are many. Farm prices probably hit the top during October, 1946. Prices that farmers will have to pay for goods during 1947 seem likely to go higher, he said.

Members of the general extension council are:

PROJECTS FOR COMING YEAR ARE OUTLINED

4-H Clubs, Livestock, Soil Management On Program Of Extension Council

Four-H club work older rural youth, economic information and trends, soil management, livestock breed improvement, consumer information, standards in clothing construction and securing an assistant agent for Summer 4-H club work are projects to be stressed during 1947 by the Pickaway county general extension council.

Plans for the year's program were made at a meeting of members of the county group, held in the county extension office. Officers of the group are Harold Hines, Walnut township, president; Donald Courtwright, Harrison township, vice president; Stanley Croman, Washington township, secretary.

During the meeting a brief summary of extension work in the county since its beginning in 1921 was given. Purposes of extension work were discussed by members of the council. Genevieve Alley, home demonstration agent, presented a summary of the farm family living outlook. She stated the outlook indicates that farm family gross income probably will remain high during 1947 but net income will be less. She said most demands for goods will be met fairly well with the exception of automobiles and housing. Less money will be spent for foods as more equipment becomes available for purchase.

L. A. Best, county agricultural agent, presented some high spots on the agricultural outlook for 1947. He said indications are that the general business outlook is uncertain. Consumer wants are many. Farm prices probably hit the top during October, 1946. Prices that farmers will have to pay for goods during 1947 seem likely to go higher, he said.

Members of the general extension council are:

Mr. and Mrs. C. V. Neal, Orient, route 1; Donald Courtwright, Ashville, route 1; Mrs. Roger Hedges, Ashville, route 1; Mrs. Russell Hedges, Ashville, route 2; Harold Hines, Ashville, route 1; Kenneth Sheel, Mt. GERMANS WANT TO EMIGRATE FROM BERLIN

No Future Seen In Ruins Of Once-Proud Capital; War With Russia Predicted

"There is no future here among these ruins," a 30-year-old war veteran tells an International News Service writer in the second of a series of three stories revealing what the average German thinks today about Germany's future.

BY GEORGE W. HERALD
INS Staff Correspondent
BERLIN, Dec. 18—Helmut Warnecke came out of a restaurant in the ground-floor of the burned-out Columbia-house, the former Gestapo torture chamber on the Potsdamer platz.

Warnecke was a good natured squarely-built fellow of 30 years who looked like 40. His temples were grey and his features bore the traces of undernourishment.

When he was asked how much he earned a month he hesitated for a minute and then said:

"Officially 400 marks."
He was a carpenter but he did not conceal that he made some business deals on the side which brought him more than his job.

"I am married and have a four-year-old child," he said. "The only way to get them enough to eat is go into the black market."

He was a soldier for nine years, and he does not feel that it was worth-while. He declared:

"We are nothing at all any more. We are victims of the political clash between East and West. All we can do now is to wait for our chance, be it in peace or as somebody's partner in war."

Warnecke seemed to feel that a war against Russia would come one day and that Germany would participate in it. He welcomed this idea although he himself did not want to fight anymore. He said:

"If the ground on which I stand ever becomes Russian-controlled territory I'll pack my things again and move to the west."

"But isn't this the Russian-controlled soil here," we interjected. "Oh, no," he answered, lifting his arm towards the Leipziger platz fifty yards away. "The Russian sector only starts on the side of this square."

Warnecke, after serving with the Luftwaffe in North Africa and Sicily until 1943, had been sent to the Russian front and had fought at Witebsk and Orsk. In June 1944 he was taken prisoner and transported to Moscow where he took part in the big prisoner parade on the red square, films of which were shown all over the world.

"We were well fed in Moscow," he said. "They gave us American cans and lots of oat meal."

Conditions were less favorable in the POW camp at Stalino in the Donetz basin where the vanquished gladiators were sent afterwards. Here they had to work hard in the mines, and 30 per cent died from undernourishment.

After the war, Warnecke was fortunate enough to be sent home with one of the first transports of invalid prisoners in August 1945. He was reunited with his wife in Goettingen and moved to Berlin to start a new business.

Warnecke had enough of his experience with Nazism and did not want to live under any other dictatorship. But he is not sure that it won't happen again in Germany. He said:

"You can talk about democracy with people who have enough to eat but not with men and women who are hungry. If the allies had given Germany a chance after the first world war we would never have needed a fuhrer. If we don't get a chance now we'll go extreme."

REPORT REVEALS ATOMIC SECRET

A FOOTNOTE TO THE HISTORY of World War II is revealed now in the publication of a paper composed in 1941 by Dr. Glenn T. Seaborg (above) and three other scientists of the University of California, at Berkeley. The paper revealed that plutonium was fissionable with slow as well as fast neutrons and should make an even better atomic bomb than uranium. Suppressed for military security, the paper has now been published, with certain highly secret details omitted. (International)

MRS. RANDOLPH RETURNS TO AGRICULTURE POST

COLUMBUS, O., Dec. 18—Mrs. Lottie M. Randolph, who served as assistant director of the state department of agriculture under Governor Bricker, will serve the Herbert administration in the same position.

Governor-Elect Thomas J. Herbert announced her appointment last night. Mrs. Randolph in the period from 1939 through 1944 was the first woman to serve in that position in the 100 years of the department's history.

Mrs. Randolph operated a farm in Perry county for many years but now lives in Columbus.

mist again, perhaps even Communist, although I personally detest Communism. People who are hungry and destitute don't listen to reason. We are just people like anybody else. All we want is to get decent living conditions comparable to those of other civilized countries in Europe."

Warnecke said he had taken steps to emigrate to Zurich in Switzerland where he had some friends. At the end of our talk he was surrounded by about 50 other Berliners who were all griping against the Russians and declared like one man:

"We want to emigrate too. There is no future among these ruins here."

NEWARK WOMAN'S DEATH LISTED AS ACCIDENTAL

NEWARK, O., Dec. 18—The mystery death of Newark socialite Mrs. Frank Rodamer, 35, was entered into the official records as accidental today by Licking county Coroner George W. Sapp.

Mrs. Rodamer's body, cut in two by a train, was found on a railroad track early Monday about 100 feet from her battered automobile. Police said the vehicle had apparently been in an accident about a mile away.

Police Chief Gail Christman said the coroner's verdict was based on a theory that Mrs. Rodamer was injured in the accident and had wandered onto the track in a dazed condition while seeking aid.

SINGING SAVES YOUNG NEGRO FROM PRISON

CROWN POINT, Ind., Dec. 18—His ability to sing "Silent Night" gave a 20-year-old Gary Negro his freedom today on a suspended burglary sentence.

But Alvin Mitchell, shoemaker and former choir singer, was told by Judge William J. Murray that the court's leniency was a Christmas present with strings attached.

Mitchell had pleaded guilty yesterday to burglary of a store when the judge asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was passed. Mitchell said he would like to sing.

As the judge approved, Mitchell offered "Silent Night" in a rich baritone. As an encore for the courtroom audience Mitchell sang "Ave Maria." Judge Murray declared:

"Mitchell, I impose upon you a suspended sentence of two to five years in prison and place you on probation for three years."

"But if you ever break into another store it will be me and not you who does the singing."

NEWARK WOMAN'S DEATH LISTED AS ACCIDENTAL

NEWARK, O., Dec. 18.—The mystery death of Newark socialite Mrs. Frank Rodamer, 35, was entered into the official records as accidental today by Licking county Coroner George W. Sapp.

Mrs. Rodamer's body, cut in two by a train, was found on a railroad track early Monday about 100 feet from her battered automobile. Police said the vehicle had apparently been in an accident about a mile away.

Police Chief Gail Christman said the coroner's verdict was based on a theory that Mrs. Rodamer was injured in the accident and had wandered onto the track in a dazed condition while seeking aid.

SINGING SAVES YOUNG NEGRO FROM PRISON

CROWN POINT, Ind., Dec. 18.—His ability to sing "Silent Night" gave a 20-year-old Gary Negro his freedom today on a suspended burglary sentence.

But Alvin Mitchell, shoemaker and former choir singer, was told by Judge William J. Murray that the court's leniency was a Christmas present with strings attached.

Mitchell had pleaded guilty yesterday to burglary of a store when the judge asked him if he had anything to say before sentence was passed. Mitchell said he would like to sing.

As the judge approved, Mitchell offered "Silent Night" in a rich baritone. As an encore for the courtroom audience Mitchell sang "Ave Maria." Judge Murray declared:

"Mitchell, I impose upon you a suspended sentence of two to five years in prison and place you on probation for three years."

30,000 TONS OF LIME USED ON COUNTY FARMS

Soil Building Practices To Be Continued Under ACP Program

Farmers of Pickaway county who cooperated in the agricultural conservation program put about 30,000 tons of lime on their land in 1946, or about 10,000 tons more than last year, according to Chairman John Boggs of the county AAA committee.

The amount of lime applied this year is about 95 percent what it was in 1935. Generally speaking, however, the county needs about 40,000 tons of lime annually in order to maintain soil fertility, Mr. Boggs said.

"Every year water washes lime out of the soil," he said. "Loss of lime can be serious because it acts as a soil conditioner and aids other plant food elements in doing their job."

"Tests prove that lime increases the yield and improves the quality of clover and other legumes and grasses which, in turn, means more and better feed for livestock," Mr. Boggs said. "Good stands of legumes also are important in erosion control."

Mr. Boggs explained that lime-spreading is only one important soil building practice carried out under the agricultural conservation program. ACP aims at more and better food for all consumers, as well as better land, higher yields and profits for farmers, he said.

Chairman Boggs announced that about February 1, 1947, Pickaway county farmers will meet with farmer-committeemen to make conservation plans for 1947. Farmers are expected to do more liming next year. Other major soil building practices in the county will include use of fertilizer, green manure crops, strip cropping and sod waterways.

Under the ACP, the government shares with farmers the cost of carrying out soil building practices and water conservation measures.

Complete information on the program may be obtained at the AAA office in Circleville.

LEAP WITHOUT LOOK

LOOKING back on the coal strike, the two most impracticable solutions were to call on volunteer miners, and to draft Lewis into the army, and if he refused to send the miners back to work, shoot him. Volunteers might run such services as street cars passably, if not well; but no untrained volunteer would be much help in a coal mine, and he would be likely to endanger his own life and that of others. Competent mining needs skilled workers.

Shooting Lewis is a tempting way out of labor difficulties, but would lead into a far worse situation. He would be regarded as a martyr to the cause of labor, and, dead, would inspire uprisings even more drastic than he proposed while alive. It is a good rule for governments as well as individuals not to enter on courses without seeing clearly where they lead. The draft Lewis suggestion is more calculated to relieve the maker's mind than to solve a tangled problem.

Besides which, the volunteers would be considered scabs by fellow-workers and draft into the army is an honor, never a punishment.

QUEST FOR RICHES

ONE of the world's hottest countries, Arabia, has been revealed as the home of oil. Antarctica, whose cold is almost beyond bearing, is to be searched for uranium and other precious metals. If found, settlers will follow, just as they are already invading Arabia.

When all known regions of the world are investigated, some bold hunters may try the interior of the earth. Its heat might be made commercially useful. If so, depend on it that some will be found to brave all discomforts and dangers in order to live where money is to be made. But that way progress lies, for money is made only by providing comforts and satisfactions for people in general.

FRONTIER IN REVERSE

YES, there were rough times in the old frontier days, when bold men bore their lives in their hands and fired at the lift of a pistol. But were they really any worse than in these current days of so-called civilization?

"Hijacking is now big business" appears in a current report from New York. Criminal gangs seem to be as well armed and as quick on the trigger as in the days of Mark Twain's "Roughing It". There are organized gangs ready for any assault, reckless and cruel in their operations. Their enterprises lately seem to be on a rising scale, growing in skill and boldness. Some gangs are said to be composed of scores or even hundreds of criminals. The most shameful part of it is that these gangs maintain their own lawyers to keep them out of jail.

No one would accuse Secretary Byrnes of having a soft job.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Concluding my points of yesterday which were these: (A) The Nathan survey advocating another 25 per cent wage increase was hired by CIO's Phil Murray to promote propaganda for his campaign in autos and steel, although the radio and some newspaper accounts termed it an indisputable figure survey which Murray had "accepted"; (B) The survey covered every business project but not alone the pertinent ones of autos and steel which are the two biggest, basic industries and have been in bad shape; (C) Nathan proposed to hold business profits to a pre-war level, while costs and wages have gone up in inflation since then, and industry cannot continue to exist in isolation on a pre-war dollar level; (D) The promise of no price increases was the same the CIO made in its losing 120 day strike a year ago although there have been three auto price increases at least to consumers so far that I know of; (E) CIO is leading the unions into irreparable damage because the man on any kind of salary has already found he cannot keep up with an inflationary era in which prices are forced even higher and higher; and (F) such a campaign is so poorly grounded in economy it is apt to lead Murray to the fate of John Lewis.

I promised today to offer truly pertinent statistics which were inconspicuously announced to stockholders by U. S. Steel and G.M., and here they are:

Nets sales of General Motors fell more than half from last year. The first nine months of 1945 sales were $2,603,000 and in 1946 $1,114,000 GM reports to stockholders. Now this is a bad citation from which false deductions may be drawn (you college economist classes please note), because last year was a bad year for production, being the earliest period of reconversion to peace—and prices have actually been increased three times in many car lines since then. So GM sales are half as much as a period sustained by government contract buying for war, and corporate usage of accumulated tax revenues for reconversion. (All figures cover three quarters)

Net income of GM is shown on its annual statement to be $14,012,370 for the first nine months of 1946 which is about 10 percent of earnings of last years first nine months, $147,749,167.

The actual amount earned per share of stock by GM has been reduced from $3.20 the first nine months of last year to 12 cents for the comparable period this year.

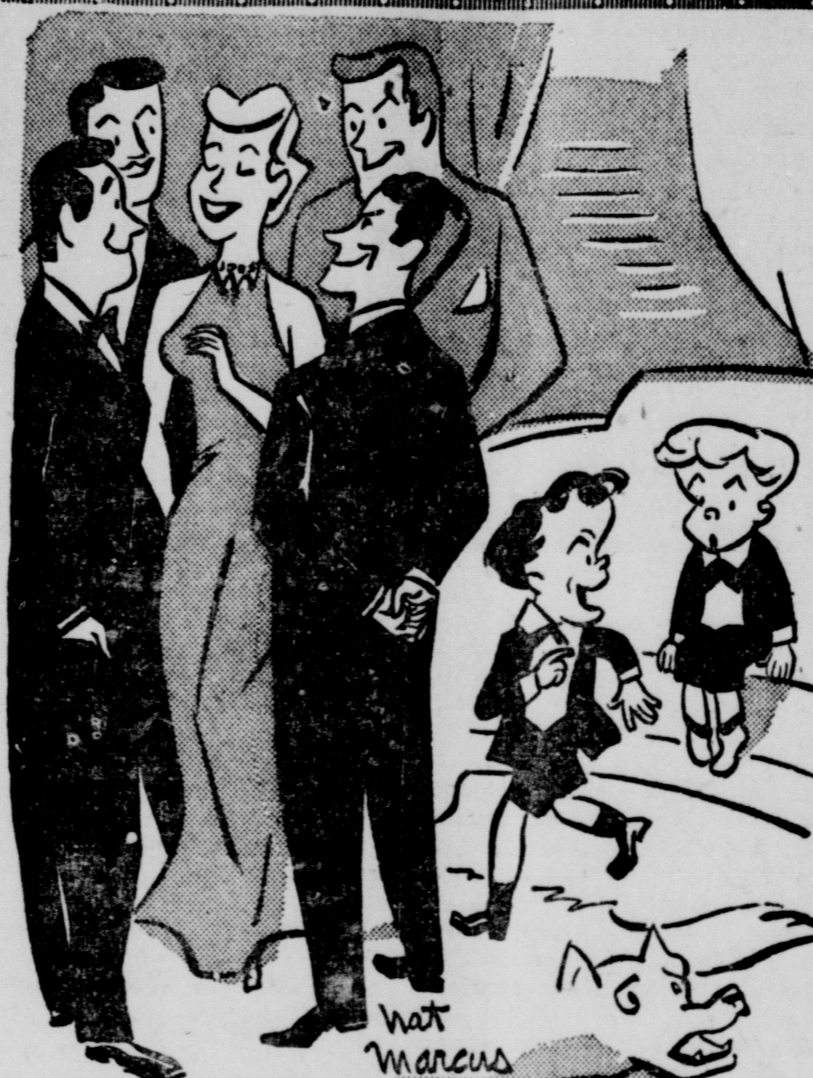

As to next year no one can say, including particularly Messrs. Murray and Nathan. I do not intend to do a Dunn and Bradstreet on General Motors, but the earnings prospect, I very well know, all depends on Mr. Murray's unions, whether they strike another 120 days this year or longer, or slow down, or production is accomplished.

I know also I cannot buy a Cadillac like John Lewis in less than a year (salesmen promise it then and agree it may be longer) so obviously GM does not know what its production will be, and only by production can it sell cars and earn money, being in that business. If anyone wanted me to do a D and B on GM, I would start off by seeing Mr. Murray not the company.

Gallbladder Disease Patients Report Differing Symptoms

By HERMAN N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

IT USED to be thought that gallbladder disease was an ailment reserved almost exclusively for women, finding its victims among those who were "fair, fat and forty." Today we know that this is not true. Women between forty and fifty are more frequently attacked than are men, but recent figures show that 15 per cent of all people suffer from this trouble in one form or another. At least one-third of those over 45 contract it.

The symptoms in gallbladder disease vary to a great extent. Many patients find that eating fried or fatty foods, raw apples, cucumbers, or cabbage causes some disturbances.

Gallbladder disease causes attacks of pain which, as a rule, are in the right upper part of the abdomen. The pain, however, may be in the pit of the stomach or between the shoulder blades. It may occur at intervals or be continuous. There is also some tenderness in the right upper part of the abdomen.

A gall bladder disturbance may be acute, that is, come on suddenly. In such cases, there is an attack of pain in the abdomen, which increases in severity and is accompanied by sickness to the stomach and vomiting. At times the enlarged gallbladder can be felt by the physician through the abdominal wall. When this occurs, there is a chance that the gallbladder may rupture or break open. Fortunately, this is a very rare occurrence.

An Early Operation

According to Dr. A. Chalmers Hope of Charlotte, North Carolina, in most instances early operation in acute gallbladder disturbances will prevent serious complications, such as rupture of the gallbladder or acute inflammation of the liver. In chronic or long-continued gallbladder disturbances, the symptoms are much less severe, but frequent attacks of pain, together with excess gas formation in the stomach and bowel, and sometimes sickness to the stomach and vomiting occur. Most patients with chronic gallbladder infection do not require operation. They may get along satisfactorily by following a prescribed diet, reducing in weight, and using, as directed by the physician, preparations which may help to stimulate the flow of bile from the gallbladder.

When gallbladder symptoms occur, an X-ray should be taken to help determine whether or not gallstones are present. The only way to get rid of these stones, in so far as is known at the present time, is by operation.

CHAPTER SIXTEEN

LATER THAT evening Roddy

stopped Philip in the hall.

"Got any cigarettes, Philip?"

"I just got a fresh carton."

Roddy followed him into his room and dropped into the big chair by the window. "Don't you doctors have a line about treating the patient as well as the disease?" he asked when Philip handed him a pack and sat down on the window sill.

"Something like that," Philip answered, striking a match for Roddy's cigarette, then lighting

one for himself.

"Well, I thought if I unburdened

my soul, you might be able to tell me what's wrong with it." Roddy had evidently been drinking and was at the talkative stage. His eyes were bright, his smile ingratiating.

"I'm not a psychiatrist," said

Philip without enthusiasm. "I know nothing whatever about souls."

"I'll tell you about mine; then you will."

"Go ahead," said Philip, there not being much else he could say.

It was not that he had no curiosity concerning Roddy's inner workings, but he did not expect much enlightenment. He expected, rather, to have to listen to a rambling account of Roddy's personal experiences, and the necessity for listening to such stories was for him, one of the chief drawbacks to being a doctor.

Roddy smoked violently for a few minutes; then crushed the cigarette in an ash-tray on the table beside him and leaned forward.

"I suppose you wouldn't believe if I told you I had a very good mother?"

"I might."

"Too darn good. That's what's the trouble with me now."

Philip waited with a stirring of interest.

"I never had any real childhood, or any freedom. We lived on a farm and I did all the chores.

When I was ten years old I had five cents a week spending money;

one penny for Sunday School, the other four taken back as fines for bad behavior. When they ran out,

I had to learn passages in the Bible—whole chapters if I did anything really serious, like stopping to talk to the kids on the way home from school. When I was twelve, my mother caught me smoking coffee cigarettes and locked me in the tool house for a week on bread and water. Not long after that she caught me taking a dime from her purse, and she went straight out to the barn and hitched up the horse and wagon to take me in to Denver to turn me over to the juvenile court. As soon as we got to town I ran away from her. She never found me. It was the first good break I'd ever had in my life."

Roddy's arms were hanging down between his knees, his hands clapped together. He lifted his bright dark eyes to meet Philip's for a moment, and then looked again at the floor.

"Well, I fell in with hoboes and bummed my way around the country, living the best way I could.

I fell in love with a pretty little red-headed taxi dancer when I was seventeen, and asked her to marry me—I had a job in the orchestra. I always had an ear for music—but she ran away with one of her rich customers instead. That turned me against that kind of woman. My mother had already turned me against the good ones.

Now you see why I don't want to marry Jean. She reminds me of both."

Philip, aware of a faint sense of repulsion, leaned over and put his cigarette in the ash-tray. He waited for Roddy to say more, but Roddy sat silent, his eyes still fixed on his clasped hands.

Then Philip said, a little smile on his lips, "I don't have to be a psychiatrist, Roddy, to know that there isn't a single word of truth in what you've been saying."

"Well, is there?"

"What the devil do you think I'd tell you this for, if it weren't true?"

"I'm sure I don't know," answered Philip coolly, "unless you wanted to take me for a ride along with everyone else around here."

"Well, if you're so smart, what's wrong with my story?"

"Oh, I don't know; you just aren't the type. If I didn't know you, of course, I might have fallen for it. A childhood like that would certainly do something to you. But you don't strike me as the product of any such kind of life. I'd guess you were the only child of a doting mother. And besides, where would you have got any education? You know too many things you didn't pick up in boxcars and dance halls."

Roddy grinned suddenly. "I guess

all doctors are amateur lie detectors. Looks like I'd have to change my story."

"I would."

Roddy stood up. "Well, I've taken up enough of your valuable time, Doctor. I'll be going now."

Shoddy found a lion's Philip thought. All the ability and personality could not fill in the cracks.

LEAP WITHOUT LOOK

LOOKING back on the coal strike, the two most impracticable solutions were to call on volunteer miners, and to draft Lewis into the army, and if he refused to send the miners back to work, shoot him. Volunteers might run such services as street cars passably, if not well; but no untrained volunteer would be much help in a coal mine, and he would be likely to endanger his own life and that of others. Competent mining needs skilled workers.

Shooting Lewis is a tempting way out of labor difficulties, but would lead into a far worse situation. He would be regarded as a martyr to the cause of labor, and, dead, would inspire uprisings even more drastic than he proposed while alive. It is a good rule for governments as well as individuals not to enter on courses without seeing clearly where they lead. The draft Lewis suggestion is more calculated to relieve the maker's mind than to solve a tangled problem.

Besides which, the volunteers would be considered scabs by fellow-workers and draft into the army is an honor, never a punishment.

QUEST FOR RICHES

ONE of the world's hottest countries, Arabia, has been revealed as the home of oil. Antarctica, whose cold is almost beyond bearing, is to be searched for uranium and other precious metals. If found, settlers will follow, just as they are already invading Arabia.

When all known regions of the world are investigated, some bold hunters may try the interior of the earth. Its heat might be made commercially useful. If so, depend on it that some will be found to brave all discomforts and dangers in order to live where money is to be made. But that way progress lies, for money is made only by providing comforts and satisfactions for people in general.

FRONTIER IN REVERSE

YES, there were rough times in the old frontier days, when bold men bore their lives in their hands and fired at the lift of a pistol. But were they really any worse than in these current days of so-called civilization?

"Hijacking is now big business" appears in a current report from New York. Criminal gangs seem to be as well armed and as quick on the trigger as in the days of Mark Twain's "Roughing It". There are organized gangs ready for any assault, reckless and cruel in their operations. Their enterprises lately seem to be on a rising scale, growing in skill and boldness. Some gangs are said to be composed of scores or even hundreds of criminals. The most shameful part of it is that these gangs maintain their own lawyers to keep them out of jail.

No one would accuse Secretary Byrnes of having a soft job.

NEWS BEHIND THE NEWS

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON, Dec. 18—Concluding my points of yesterday which were these: (A) The Nathan survey advocating another 25 per cent wage increase was hired by CIO's Phil Murray to promote propaganda for his campaign in autos and steel, although the radio and some newspaper accounts termed it an indisputable figure survey which Murray had "accepted"; (B) The survey covered every business project but not alone the pertinent ones of autos and steel which are the two biggest, basic industries and have been in bad shape; (C) Nathan proposed to hold business profits to a pre-war level, while costs and wages have gone up in inflation since then, and industry cannot continue to exist in isolation on a pre-war dollar level; (D) The promise of no price increases was the same the CIO made in its losing 120 day strike a year ago although there have been three auto price increases at least to consumers so far that I know of; (E) CIO is leading the unions into irreparable damage because the man on any kind of salary has already found he cannot keep up with an inflationary era in which prices are forced even higher and higher; and (F) such a campaign is so poorly grounded in economy it is apt to lead Murray to the fate of John Lewis.

I promised today to offer truly pertinent statistics which were inconspicuously announced to stockholders by U. S. Steel and G.M., and here they are:

Nets sales of General Motors fell more than half from last year. The first nine months of 1945 sales were $2,603,000 and in 1946 $1,114,000 GM reports to stockholders. Now this is a bad citation from which false deductions may be drawn (you college economist classes please note), because last year was a bad year for production, being the earliest period of reconversion to peace—and prices have actually been increased three times in many car lines since then. "I would." Roddy stood up. "Well, I've taken up enough of your valuable time, Doctor. I'll be going now." Shedy foundations, Philip thought. All the ability and personality could not fill in the cracks.

The Lanes' front porch on Sunday morning, strewn from one end to the other with the News and Post, was a pleasant if somewhat disorderly place. There was plenty of reading matter for Republican and Democrat alike, and the total of funnies, as anyone discovered who undertook to read them to Mary, was appalling.

Ordinarily Roddy and Jean would have been in the swing, scrapping happily together; but Roddy had gone off somewhere by himself, and Jean was in her room. Philip was in the swing today, buried in the sport section of the News. He let it drop to the floor presently, and looked at Anne, just visible around the corner of the magazine section. They had the porch to themselves.

They had been alone together a good deal lately. Roddy generally failed to appear when they planned to go anywhere, and Jean always insisted on waiting for him. Jean seemed to have taken it upon herself to see that there was no repetition of his lapse, or whatever it might have been. Her faith in Roddy may have been shaken, but obviously was not lost. Philip saw that Roddy was getting restless under her surveillance.

For some obscure reason, Philip was restless himself. Perhaps that change in the atmosphere, which was affecting all of them in one way or another, had made him especially conscious that this was not home, that it was nothing more than a very pleasant and convenient, but none the less temporary, stopping place.

And Mary should have a home. Whatever else her grandmother had done, she had given her that. He had been thinking of getting an apartment; but there was the difficulty of finding the right person to take charge of Mary, and so far he had overcome the temptation to let it rise.

But he couldn't let it ride forever. He would have liked the idea of "batching"; but he would have, as a matter of fact, neither a bachelor apartment nor a home; and he got depressed every time he thought of it.

Anne, turning a page, met his eyes and smiled. "Reading up on the latest scandal?" he inquired.

"No, interior decorating. How to be comfortable, though modern." She showed him the picture of a living room.

"It doesn't look very comfortable to me," he said. "Oh, but it is. You sink into those chairs beautifully."

"Too low." "Well, for your long legs, maybe."

Anne went back to her paper, and Philip studied the ceiling. He wanted a home for himself, of course, as well as for Mary. He felt to thinking of all the things he and Sheila had never had. Anne broke into his thoughts.

"Philip, do you realize that that child's been 'walking up and down in the boiling sun for ages'?" "Has she?" Philip raised up on his elbow and looked down the street where Mary was pushing her doll buggy. "A mad dog and an Englishman—!" She doesn't play with that doll once a week, but she would pick a day like this."

"I didn't go in for dolls much, either," Anne said. "I liked climbing trees better." "She'd have a hard time climbing these." Philip contemplated the tall elms. "A nice low apple tree, now."

Anne nodded. "That's what I had. Children don't know what to do with themselves in a place like this—a neat lawn, a border of flowers that can be picked only just so."

Philip smiled. "She isn't reconciled to that yet, is she? She really had a nice place to play at her grandmother's, and pile and all. I don't like having her in school so much either. I can't help feeling a little guilty, sometimes."

"It's going home for my vacation next week," Anne said. "I'd love to take Mary with me. Dad wouldn't care how many flowers she picked, and I know she'd love my apple tree."

Philip turned to look at her, startled. "I should think you'd want to rest on a vacation." "No, honestly, it would be fun. There are so many things she could do. Dad's always making something she could help with, and he and her mother would both love having her."

"It would be grand for her, of course," Philip said, but for the moment he was not really thinking; he was groping for something, something that had come and gone lately—an idea, or a desire.

"Dad is coming after me next Sunday," Anne said presently. "I'd take awfully good care of her."

"Of course you would," said Philip, and the idea he had been groping for clicked. She WOULD take care of Mary, such care as Mary had never had. Was this why he had been so restless, and at the same time so reluctant to make a change? He had thought he did not want to leave Mrs. Lane's. Wasn't it really Anne whom he did not want to leave?

Partisan Politics Wrecks Senate War Probe Harmony | Effort to End Committee Now Appears a Certainty

Special to Central Press

WASHINGTON—Partisan politics and pressure groups have finally blasted the harmony which made the Senate war investigating committee a success throughout the war.

As a result, Capitol observers are convinced the Republicans will have a difficult time reconstituting the committee in the GOP-controlled 80th Congress.

The blow-off came on the question of an investigation of military government in the United States zone of Germany. Democratic senators and President Truman—first chairman of the committee—went along with the idea at first.

But when Chief Counsel George Meader returned from Germany with a preliminary report criticizing conditions there, with special reference to Negro troops and Jewish refugees, the "heat" went on to taper off the inquiry.

The committee voted 6 to 4—with six Democrats in control—against sending a subcommittee to Germany. Members then vied in "leaking" the information in the suppressed preliminary report.

Senator Arthur Vandenberg (R) of Michigan, GOP foreign policy leader and chairman-to-be of the new foreign relations committee, supported Secretary of State James Byrnes in opposing the subcommittee's trip to Germany.

A fight to eliminate the committee and turn its functions over to the committee on executive expenditures now appears certain. Republicans on the committee will try to continue it, but other members of the majority, including Vandenberg, may line up with Democrats in arguing that with the war over, there is no longer a place for non-partisan investigating.

THE SENATE HAS FOUND the solution to the problem of the disappearing ash trays. J. Mark Trice, deputy sergeant-at-arms, says souvenir grabbers caused a constant shortage of receptacles for the ashes from senatorial cigars.

Now, however, his troubles are over. He has equipped Senate offices with ash trays guaranteed to repel even the most avid souvenir hunters. The new trays are dark brown bakelite, deep and practical but distinctly unornamental. They won't win any beauty prizes, but Trice thinks they are fine. They stay put.

The other day, a salesman tried to interest Trice in an attractive glass tray bearing the words "U. S. Senate." He got a violent "No" from Trice, who could see his troubles starting all over again.

SPEAKER SAM RAYBURN (D) of Texas is expected to throw his support behind Rep. John McCormack (D) of Massachusetts for minority leader of the 80th Congress.

The speaker, who will relinquish his own post to Rep. Joseph Martin (R) of Massachusetts on Jan. 3, is expected to act firmly in an effort to quash a southern "revolt" against McCormack, now majority leader.

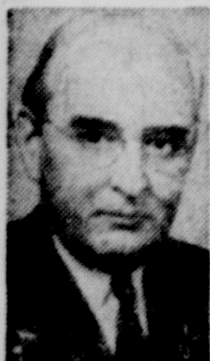

Northern Democrats, who lack the votes to elect McCormack on their own, will probably receive enough aid from members from Texas and border states to continue the Massachusetts congressman as Democratic floor leader.

Several southerners have been mentioned as candidates for minority leader, including Representatives Cox of Georgia and Rankin of Mississippi. Cox says he is not interested and insists Rayburn will be drafted to lead the party in the House. The Texan, however, appears to be standing firm in his insistence that McCormack get the job.

'Artists In Iron' Is Topic for DAR Members

Miss McEwing Gives Talk On Foundry Located Here

Members of the Daughters of the American Revolution, met Tuesday evening, in the home of Mrs. David Harman, South Court street. The home was decorated throughout with poinsettias and red candles.

The meeting opened with singing of "America", followed by the ritualistic service, lead by Mrs. Charles Pugsley, regent, and Mrs. Christian Schwarz, chaplain. Mrs. R. R. Bales led the salute to the flag and Mrs. Richard Hedges, a new member, was introduced to the society.

At the conclusion of a short business meeting, Mrs. Walter Kindler, a member of the program committee, introduced Miss Charlotte McEwing, who discussed the iron foundry in early Circleville, taking as her subject, "Artists in Iron".

Miss McEwing's father was formerly manager of the old Haswell Wright company foundry, which later became known as the Scioto Machine Works. The building was located where the Cooperative creamery now stands. On this site a hotel on the canal originally stood. Among the articles made in the foundry, Miss McEwing listed stoves, engines, sawmills, ash weights for windows, grills, fences, gate bars, furnace castings for Haswell furnaces, iron gratings for street gutters and iron lamp posts.

Many examples of the foundry's products may still be seen in Circleville. Miss McEwing mentioned, as examples of this work still standing, the front of the American hotel, which was designed by a Mr. Demuth and moulded by John Moore. The label "Scioto Machine Works" may still be seen in the iron. The balcony at the hotel was made at the foundry and the front of Dr. H. D. Jackson's office, was moulded by Mrs. John Carl's father, John English.

Other products from the foundry still in existence include the fence around the Marfield residence, and the fence around the Moore lot at High street cemetery. Fences at the home of Mrs. Grace Wentworth, Charles May, and Wellington Morris were all made at the foundry. Miss McEwing added, as a sidelight, "If you got a plain iron fence (wrought iron) you got a hitching post thrown in." She mentioned that grill work of the foundry may be seen in the door of the Dr. Jones building on West Main street, the Dearth home on East Main street, the Brunner home South Court street, balcony of the Dr. Bales building, and on the Hunsicker building, North Court street. She also mentioned the cresting on the High street school building, and on the Parrett property, East Main street.

Miss McEwing said, they used to have a stove in the foundry with which they heated the building, called, "94 in the shade". She mentioned, that at this period, there were a number of inventors in the city, namely: Will Wood,

Brownie Troop Has Christmas Party

Girl Scout Brownie troop 7 held a Christmas party in candlelighted headquarters rooms Tuesday afternoon. Mothers of the troop members and Mrs. Bernard Young, commissioner, were guests for the affair.

Mrs. K. E. Dountz, leader, was in charge of the program and presented Kay Graf who sang, "Away in a Manger". The number was followed by an explanation of "Thinking Day" and its basic thought of giving.

This year the girls chose Poland as the country to which they will send gifts. Instead of holding the annual gift exchange among troop members presents were brought which will be sent to Girl Scouts in Poland.

The girls made a scrap book for children at the county home and made gifts which they presented to their mothers. Members of the troop committee Mrs. J. E. Goeller, Mrs. Norbert Cochran, Mrs. Karl Mason, Miss Margaret Rooney and Mrs. Robert Musser assisted with the tea and refreshments which followed. Assisting the leader are Mrs. David Jackson and Mrs. Frank Barnhill, Jr.

Bob Brown, Jefferson Medical college, Philadelphia, Pa., arrived Monday evening to spend the holidays with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Rockford Brown, East Mound street.

Girl Scouts Have Candlelight Tea And Carol Program

Girl Scouts of intermediate troops 1, 2, 3, 9 and senior Scout troop 8 took part in a Christmas program Tuesday evening before an audience of about three hundred friends, parents, and association members in the attractively lighted and decorated St. Phillip's parish house.

Mrs. Walter Heine opened the program with the reading of a poem and a brief message as the Juliette Low members of the several troops marched quietly in and placed their offering under the lighted Christmas tree. They were gifts for the Girl Scouts in England, Poland, Czechoslovakia and other lands. "They are" said Mrs. Heine "a token of both our love and our faith".

Following this service there were a series of shadowgraphs presented depicting the Nativity with Miss Lannie Given as narrator. The Girl Scouts as chorus offered appropriate Christmas carols. Mrs. Vaden Couch directed the singing and she and Miss Ann Curtin accompanied the girls.

Soloists for the carols were Miss Ruth Grubb, who offered, "Away in a Manger", Miss Beverly Reid, "First Noel", Miss Theresa Hill, "O Little Town of Bethlehem", Miss Nancy Eshelman, "Oh Holy Night", and the "Sleep of Child Jesus", was presented by a quartet comprised of Misses Nancy Eshelman, Jean Heine, Sue Brown, Lannie Given.

Senior troop 8 presented a brilliantly costumed pantomime of the Bohemian ballad "Good King Wenceslas".

Following the entertainment tea and refreshments were served with Mrs. Bernard W. Young, commissioner, Mrs. Tom Renick deputy, Mrs. Bishop Given and Mrs. Wendell Turner troop chairmen presiding.

In charge of the program were Miss Margaret Rooney, Mrs. John Eshelman, Mrs. Walter Heine, Mrs. Ralph Curtin.

OES CHRISTMAS PARTY IS HELD; 50 ARE PRESENT

Fifty members and guests were present for the Christmas party of the Order of Eastern Star, held Tuesday evening in the Masonic Temple.

A miniature Christ Child and the manger, formed the background of the candle light services, as Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer, worthy matron and Arthur Sark, worthy patron conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, Mrs. Kenneth Robbins, Mrs. Dick Robinson, Mrs. E. S. Shane, Mrs. Robert Bower, and Miss Virginia Marion entered the room singing Christmas carols. This service was followed by Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. Robert Bower, singing "Away in a Manger", and a prayer offered by Mrs. Robinson. Mrs. Defenbaugh presented a vocal solo, "Perfect Prayer".

Singing Christmas carols, the group entered the Red room, where there was a large lighted Christmas tree. A real Santa Claus greeted them and gave out gifts.

Refreshments were served from the lace covered tea table, which was decorated with small Christmas trees and candles. There was a birthday cake with burning candles, in honor of members whose birthday anniversaries are in December. Committee members responsible for the refreshments were, Mrs. Emmett Barnhart, Mrs. Joseph Clarridge, Mrs. Ned Griner, Mrs. Paul Counts, Mrs. George Goodchild, Mrs. George Hammel, Mrs. George Foerst, and Miss Bertha Valentine.

Miss Ann McMordie accompanied her mother and grandmother, Mrs. Lewis McMordie and Mrs. H. S. Lewis to Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, where they visited with Campbell McMordie a student of the Crambrook school.

Miss McEwing's father was formerly manager of the old Haswell Wright company foundry, which later became known as the Scoto Machine Works. The building was located where the Cooperative creamery now stands. On this site a hotel on the canal originally stood. Among the articles made in the foundry, Miss McEwing listed stoves, engines, sawmills, ash weights for windows, grills, fences, grate bars, furnace castings for Haswell furnaces, iron gratings for street gutters and iron lamp posts.

Many examples of the foundry's products may still be seen in Circleville. Miss McEwing mentioned, as examples of this work still standing, the front of the American hotel, which was designed by a Mr. Demuth and moulded by John Moore. The label "Scoto Machine Works" may still be seen in the iron. The balcony at the hotel was made at the foundry and the front of Dr. H. D. Jackson's office, was moulded by Mrs. John Carl's father, John English.

Other products from the foundry still in existence include the fence around the Marfield residence, and the fence around the Moore lot at High street cemetery. Fences at the home of Mrs. Grace Wentworth, Charles May, and Wellington Morris were all made at the foundry. Miss McEwing added, as a sidelight, "if you got a plain iron fence (wrought iron) you got a hitching post thrown in." She mentioned that grill work of the foundry may be seen in the door of the Dr. Jones building on West Main street, the Dearth home on East Main street, the Brunner home South Court street, balcony of the Dr. Bales building, and on the Hunsicker building, North Court street. She also mentioned the cresting on the High street school building, and on the Parrett property, East Main street.

Miss McEwing said, they used to have a stove in the foundry with which they heated the building, called "94 in the shade". She mentioned, that at this period, there were a number of inventors in the city, namely: Will Wood,

In conclusion, Miss McEwing displayed several iron pieces, including an old paper weight, in the design of a pig, which belongs to Mrs. Gilbert Tegarden, and a bracket to hang on the wall, brought by Mrs. Walter Kindler. She also displayed a paper weight in the design of a turtle, made by John Moore, an employee of the company. Miss McEwing said, that the men of this foundry were "unpretentious and unassuming and that truly they would have disavowed it, but they really were artists."

After Miss McEwing's talk a social hour was held, during which tea was served. Mrs. Martin Cromley and Mrs. Charles Pugsley presided at the tea table. Assisting hostesses for the occasion included, Mrs. Frank J. Bennett, Mrs. Charles H. May, Mrs. Paul Cromley, Mrs. Kenneth E. Dountz, Mrs. Seymour Miller, Mrs. William Cromley and Miss Abbe Mills Clarke.

MRS. C. O. KERNS IS SELECTED AS DUV PRESIDENT

Election of officers was held for the Daughters of Union Veterans of the Civil War, when members met Tuesday evening in the Post room at Memorial Hall.

Mrs. C. O. Kerns, was elected as president. Mrs. Irene Jenkins, vice president, Mrs. G. H. Bausum, junior vice president, Mrs. John D. Newton, chaplain, and Mrs. J. Sam Morris, treasurer.

Members of council will be, Mrs. O. C. King, Miss Laura K. Mader, Mrs. E. L. Tolbert, Mrs. N. E. Reichelderfer, will serve as patriotic instructor, Miss Peggy Parks, musician, Miss Nelle Palm, guide, Miss Mary Haines, guard, and Mrs. John Stout, assistant guard. Color bearers will be Mrs. Pickens, Mrs. James Trimmer, Mrs. Cora Coffland, and Mrs. Frank Webbe.

Mrs. Kerns appointed Mrs. James Carpenter to serve as secretary and Mrs. Reichelderfer as press correspondent.

A short business meeting was held, which was followed by a Christmas program under the direction of Mrs. Reichelderfer and Mrs. W. E. Pickens. Mrs. Coffland took the role of Santa, in the distribution of the Christmas gift exchange.

"Oh Little Town of Bethlehem" was sung by the group, and Mrs. Pickens gave a reading "Story of Christ," from the scriptures. Miss Laura Mader presented, Edgar A. Guest's poem, "Going Home for Christmas" and Mrs. Webbe read "Christmas Parable" by Samuel McChord. "Legend of the Christmas Tree" was recited from memory by Mrs. Reichelderfer.

The program closed as the group sang in candle light, "Silent Night." Installation of officers will be held at the next meeting in January.

Brownie Troop Has Christmas Party

Girl Scout Brownie troop 7 held a Christmas party in candlelighted headquarters rooms Tuesday afternoon. Mothers of the troop members and Mrs. Bernard Young, commissioner, were guests for the affair.

Mrs. K. E. Dountz, leader, was in charge of the program and presented Kay Graf who sang, "Away in a Manger." The number was followed by an explanation of "Thinking Day" and its basic thought of giving.

This year the girls chose Poland as the country to which they will send gifts. Instead of holding the annual gift exchange among troop members presents were brought which will be sent to Girl Scouts in Poland.

Girl Scouts Have Candlelight Tea And Carol Program

Fifty members and guests were present for the Christmas party of the Order of Eastern Star, held Tuesday evening in the Masonic Temple.

A miniature Christ Child and the manger, formed the background of the candle light services, as Mrs. Frank Reichelderfer, worthy matron and Arthur Sark, worthy patron conducted the meeting.

Mrs. Harold Defenbaugh, Mrs. Kenneth Robbins, Mrs. Dick Robinson, Mrs. E. S. Shane, Mrs. Robert Bower, and Miss Virginia Marion entered the room singing Christmas carols. This service was followed by Mrs. Robbins and Mrs. Robert Bower, singing "Away in a Manger," and a prayer offered by Mrs. Robinson. Mrs. Defenbaugh presented a vocal solo, "Perfect Prayer."

Singing Christmas carols, the group entered the Red room, where there was a large lighted Christmas tree. A real Santa Claus greeted them and gave out gifts.

Refreshments were served from the lace covered tea table, which was decorated with small Christmas trees and candles. There was a birthday cake with burning candles, in honor of members whose birthday anniversaries are in December. Committee members responsible for the refreshments were, Mrs. Emmett Barnhart, Mrs. Joseph Clarridge, Mrs. Ned Griner, Mrs. Paul Counts, Mrs. George Goodchild, Mrs. George Hammel, Mrs. George Foerst, and Miss Bertha Valentine.

Miss Ann McMorde accompanied her mother and grandmother, Mrs. Lewis McMorde and Mrs. H. S. Lewis to Bloomfield Hills, Michigan, where they visited with Campbell McMorde a student of the Crambrook school.

In charge of the program were Miss Margaret Rooney, Mrs. John Eshelman, Mrs. Walter Heine, Mrs. Ralph Curtin.

FOUR GAMES ON CITY CAGE LOOP CARD THURSDAY

Blue Ribbon-Eshelman Tilt To Highlight Program At Roll And Bowl

Going will be tougher for the reportedly strong teams in the City Industrial basketball league Thursday night in Roll and Bowl.

Four games are scheduled again this week. Feature attraction is expected to be the third game on the program. In this game Blue Ribbon Dairy and Eshelman Feeds tangle. Both teams are unbeaten in the league and have proved ability to score plenty of points in previous games. Blue Ribbon has rolled over Ashville KP and Pickaway Dairy. Eshelman's has defeated Eagles and Five Points.

Robtown Stock Farm, winner in two previous league games, is favored over Tarleton AC in the first game set for 6:30 p. m.

At 7:30 p. m. Ashville KP plans to take the measure of the Five Points team. The Blue Ribbon-Eshelman game is slated for 8:30.

The final game of the evening may develop into a tough struggle. Eagles and Pickaway Dairy clash in this one.

Good crowds have been attending the sessions to see their former high school favorites in action again. Crowds should increase as the cagers return to form and better games result.

KOMEDY KINGS AND PROS TO PLAY TONIGHT

Komedy Kings and Columbus Pros will stage the feature attraction tonight at Roll and Bowl. "Wheaties" Whalen, Glen Golden, "Squint" Phares, "Red" Foster, Tom Kinkadee and other Columbus cage stars will play with the Pros against the colored traveling team, which features some of the better-known colored players in the country.

At 7:30 p. m. Blue Ribbon Dairy and Chillicothe Allen Pharmacy will meet in a preliminary game.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

U. S. steel sales were reported to stockholders as being reduced about a third from last year (first nine months). In 1945 they were $1,368,000 and in 1946 were $1,015,000. But unlike GM, steel has made up for its loss of sales by reducing expenditures on nearly everything. For wages and pensions it reduced expenditures from $652,000,000 to $505,000,000 (college economists please note Messrs. Murray and Nathan have reduced the income of their workers, even after wage increases by not letting U. S. Steel into full production and keeping it there.)

US Steel buying and services was similarly reduced from $510,000,000 to $400,000,000 (with loss of that business for others); even taxes were cut from $30,000,000 to $27,000,000 with loss of revenue to the states, and federal tax payments dropped from $28,000,000 down to $11,000,000. So instead of US Steel income per share being reduced after one third reduction in dollar volume of sales during this inflationary period, these were actually increased from $2.85 last year to $4.45 this year.

My eagle eye does not detect from the statements that either company increased its reserves or added to its net worth, but both suffered reductions of same in this period, although Steel bought a couple of western plants. (The stock market shows all this.)

Now, as I say, maybe it will not require a college class in economics to figure out that Messrs. Murray and Nathan have just about as weak a case as they could get and are actually advocating the wrong thing for the welfare of their own union and its men. The men need work and production and a stable economy. If these are forthcoming there would be good profits next year. If the union demanded a share in profits after the profits are made, their claim would make some economic sense. But by forcing industry back to pre-war dollar volume of profits they will reduce industry income actually by the extent of inflation, and by seeking a wage increase, yet unjustified economically, they will cause further inflation which would reduce the worth of any new wage increase just as it did last year's wage increase.

Mr. Murray had better hire another economist.

FOUR GAMES ON CITY CAGE LOOP CARD THURSDAY

Blue Ribbon-Eshelman Tilt To Highlight Program At Roll And Bowl

Going will be tougher for the reportedly strong teams in the City Industrial basketball league Thursday night in Roll and Bowl.

Four games are scheduled again this week. Feature attraction is expected to be the third game on the program. In this game Blue Ribbon Dairy and Eshelman Feeds tangle. Both teams are unbeaten in the league and have proved ability to score plenty of points in previous games. Blue Ribbon has rolled over Ashville KP and Pickaway Dairy. Eshelman's has defeated Eagles and Five Points.

Robtown Stock Farm, winner in two previous league games, is favored over Tarleton AC in the first game set for 6:30 p. m.

At 7:30 p. m. Ashville KP plans to take the measure of the Five Points team. The Blue Ribbon-Eshelman game is slated for 8:30.

The final game of the evening may develop into a tough struggle. Eagles and Pickaway Dairy clash in this one.

Good crowds have been attending the sessions to see their former high school favorites in action again. Crowds should increase as the cagers return to form and better games result.

KOMEDY KINGS AND PROS TO PLAY TONIGHT

Komedy Kings and Columbus Pros will stage the feature attraction tonight at Roll and Bowl. "Whistles" Whalen, Glen Golden, "Squint" Phares, "Red" Foster, Tom Kinkade and other Columbus cage stars will play with the Pros against the colored traveling team, which features some of the better-known colored players in the country.

At 7:30 p. m. Blue Ribbon Dairy and Chillicothe Alien Pharmacy will meet in a preliminary game.

NEWS Behind the NEWS

U. S. steel sales were reported to stockholders as being reduced about a third from last year (first nine months). In 1945 they were $1,368,000,000 and in 1946 were $1,015,000,000. But unlike GM, steel has made up for its loss of sales by reducing expenditures on nearly everything. For wages and pensions it reduced expenditures from $652,000,000 to $505,000,000 (college economists please note how Messrs. Murray and Nathan have reduced the income of their workers, even after wage increases by not letting U. S. Steel into full production and keeping it there.)

U. S. Steel buying and services was similarly reduced from $510,000,000 to $400,000,000 (with loss of that business for others); even depreciation was cut and state taxes were cut from $300,000,000 to $270,000,000 with loss of revenue to the states, and federal tax payments dropped from $28,000,000 down to $11,000,000. So instead of U. S. Steel income per share being reduced after one third reduction in dollar volume of sales during this inflationary period, these were actually increased from $2.85 last year to $4.45 this year.

My eagle eye does not detect from the statements that either company increased its reserves or added to its net worth, but both suffered reductions of same in this period, although Steel bought a couple of western plants. (The stock market shows all this.) Now, as I say, maybe it did not require a college class in economics to figure out that Messrs. Murray and Nathan have just about as weak a case as they could get and are actually advocating the wrong thing for the welfare of their own union and its men. The men need work and production and a stable economy. If these are forthcoming there would be good profits next year. If the union demanded a share in profits after the profits are made, their claim would make some economic sense. But by forcing industry income actually by the extent of inflation, yet unjustified economic increase, they will cause further inflation which would reduce the worth of any new wage increase just as it did last year's wage increase.

Mr. Murray had better hire another economist.

Councilmen Informed City Dust Storm Gone

Circleville city council in its final 1946 session Tuesday night passed a resolution disclaiming all right in the title to approximately 3 acres of ground given to the city 60 years ago for park purposes.

During the lengthy meeting the council—it was the first session for newly elected Councilman Milaire Haecker—approved financial reports of the municipality and of Berger hospital, listened to a report stating that the grain dust "storm" has subsided, and adopted a resolution expressing appreciation for the services of Walter Stambaugh as a member of the board of municipal utilities.

After considerable discussion the resolution relinquishing the city's claim to a parcel of land in Park Place was passed by unanimous vote of the six council members present. Councilman John Eshelman was absent.

During the discussion, participated in by all of the councilmen and by Attorney Charles H. May who had appeared before council Dec. 3 to urge the filing of the city's disclaimer, it was cited that on July 7, 1886 the Park Place acreage which had been the ring of the old fair grounds and which is situated north of Pleasant street, between North Court and North Pickaway streets, was deeded to the municipality by Samuel H. Evans, Dr. Howard Jones, and Henry Folsom, and their wives, with the stipulation that the land was to be used for park purposes within a two-year period.

Attorney May said the property was recently sold to Paul Johnson and that the 60-year-old transfer to the city constituted a "cloud" on the new owner's title. At the Dec. 3 session council referred the matter to its committee on law and claims.

That committee reported Tuesday night that there was no record of the city ever having used the land for park purposes and recommending the city disclaim all title to the property. The report was made by Councilman William M. Reid, committee member. Councilman Boyd Horn, another committeeman, dissented and proposed the matter be deferred until the Jan. 7 council session.

Backing up the report of Councilman Reid, City Solicitor George Gerhardt said there was no record that the city ever accepted title to the land and he also recommended the disclaimer be filed.

Councilman George L. Crites countered with the assertion that the council had no right to "give away" property owned by the city. When the discussion revealed that although the two-year park stipulation, said to have been embraced in a contract, is mentioned in the deed for the land filed 60 years ago but, the contract itself is not now available, Councilman Crites agreed that apparently the city never accepted the land and he then said he favored relinquishing the city's claim.

During the round-the-room discussion Councilman Ray Cook arose at one point and asked: "Did we ever hold title or are we giving away something? Just what is this we are about to vote on?" The resolution was passed by unanimous vote.

Fire Chief Talmer Wise reported to the council that the grain dust storm has subsided. It was discussed at the Dec. 3 meeting after presentation of a petition signed by 17 property owners who protested what they termed the showering of a section of the west side of the city with dust, chaff, husks and corn from a mill operated by the Pickaway Grain company. At that session the council referred the petitioners' complaint to the safety committee after Mayor Ben H. Gordon agreed to take immediate action as the top executive official of the city.

Chief Wise told the council Tuesday night that he interviewed officials of the grain company and that they told him the "worst" was over and that there will be little dust blowing henceforth. Chief Wise's statement was echoed by Mayor Gordon who said that following a meeting of the board of directors of the Pickaway Grain company he was notified that when the company's new building is completed in about three months the dust blowing problem will have been solved.

Report of Berger hospital covering the month of November, submitted by Safety Director Thurman I. Miller, was approved by unanimous vote of the council. The report listed total operating costs $4,757.19, and total collections $3,098.13.

Councilman Crites, as chairman of council's finance committee, submitted a report covering municipal finances for the period of Dec. 1 to 17. The report, approved by unanimous vote, listed:

General fund, receipts $713.49, expenditures $2,770.77, balance $18,763.38; sewage disposal fund, receipts none, expenditures $897.16, balance $1,053.17; library fund, receipts $38.72, expenditures $305.59, balance $6,758.44; auto street repair fund, receipts $37.50, expenditures $40.22, balance $3,914.72; gasoline tax fund, receipts $2,256, expenditures $922.49, balance $3,734; Berger hospital fund, receipts $2,203.86, expenditures $3,575.24, balance $7,545.57; and waterworks fund, receipts $4,445.01, expenditures $2,764.70, balance $40,731.44. Total balance $82,500.72.

The resolution of appreciation for the services of Mr. Stambaugh, who died Monday at Columbus, was adopted by unanimous vote, and copies will be placed in the council records and transmitted to the family.

Councilmen Informed City Dust Storm Gone

Circleville city council in its final 1946 session Tuesday night passed a resolution disclaiming all right in the title to approximately 3 acres of ground given to the city 60 years ago for park purposes.

During the lengthy meeting the council—it was the first session for newly elected Councilman Hilaire Haecker—approved financial reports of the municipality and of Berger hospital, listened to a report stating that the grain dust "storm" has subsided, and adopted a resolution expressing appreciation for the services of Walter Stambaugh as a member of the board of municipal utilities.

After considerable discussion the resolution relinquishing the city's claim to a parcel of land in Park Place was passed by unanimous vote of the six council members present. Councilman John Eshelman was absent.

During the discussion, participated in by all of the councilmen and by Attorney Charles H. May who had appeared before council Dec. 3 to urge the filing of the city's disclaimer, it was cited that on July 7, 1886 the Park Place acreage which had been the ring of the old fair grounds and which is situated north of Pleasant street, between North Court and North Pickaway streets, was deeded to the municipality by Samuel H. Evans, Dr. Howard Jones, and Henry Folsom, and their wives, with the stipulation that the land was to be used for park purposes within a two-year period.

Attorney May said the property was recently sold to Paul Johnson and that the 60-year-old transfer to the city constituted a "cloud" on the new owner's title. At the Dec. 3 session council referred the matter to its committee on law and claims.

That committee reported Tuesday night that there was no record of the city ever having used the land for park purposes and recommending the city disclaim all title to the property. The report was made by Councilman William M. Reid, committee member. Councilman Boyd Horn, another committee member, dissented and proposed the matter be deferred until the Jan. 7 council session.

Backing up the report of Councilman Reid, City Solicitor George Gerhardt said there was no record that the city ever accepted title to the land and he also recommended the disclaimer be filed.

Councilman George L. Crites countered with the assertion that the council had no right to "give away" property owned by the city. When the discussion revealed that although the two-year park stipulation, said to have been embraced in a contract, is mentioned in the deed for the land filed 60 years ago but, the contract itself is not now available, Councilman Crites agreed that apparently the city never accepted the land and he then said he favored relinquishing the city's claim.

During the round-the-room discussion Councilman Ray Cook arose at one point and asked: "Did we ever hold title or are we giving away something? Just what is this we are about to vote on?"

The resolution was passed by unanimous vote.

Fire Chief Palmer Wise reported to the council that the grain dust storm has subsided. It was discussed at the Dec. 3 meeting after presentation of a petition signed by 17 property owners who protested what they termed the showering of a section of the west side of the city with dust, chaff, husks and corn from a mill operated by the Pickaway Grain company. At that session the council referred the petitioners' complaint to the safety committee after Mayor Ben H. Gordon agreed to take immediate action as the top executive official of the city.

Chief Wise told the council Tuesday night that he interviewed officials of the grain company and that they told him the "worst" was over and that there will be little dust blowing henceforth. Chief Wise's statement was echoed by Mayor Gordon who said that following a meeting of the board of directors of the Pickaway Grain company he was notified that when the company's new building is completed in about three months the dust blowing problem will have been solved.

Report of Berger hospital covering the month of November, submitted by Safety Director Thurman I. Miller, was approved by unanimous vote of the council. The report listed total operating costs $4,757.19, and total collections $3,098.13.

Councilman Crites, as chairman of council's finance committee, submitted a report covering municipal finances for the period of Dec. 1 to 17. The report, approved by unanimous vote, listed:

General fund, receipts $713.49, expenditures $2,770.77, balance $18,763.38; sewage disposal fund, receipts none, expenditures $897.16, balance $1,053.17; library fund, receipts $38.72, expenditures $305.59, balance $6,758.44; auto street repair fund, receipts $37.50, expenditures $40.22, balance $3,914.72; gasoline tax fund, receipts $2,256, expenditures $922.49, balance $3,734; Berger hospital fund, receipts $2,203.86, expenditures $3,575.24, balance $7,545.57; and waterworks fund, receipts $4,445.01, expenditures $2,764.70, balance $40,731.44. Total balance $82,500.72.

The resolution of appreciation for the services of Mr. Stambaugh, who died Monday at Columbus, was adopted by unanimous vote, and copies will be placed in the council records and transmitted to the family.
